

THRIVE Translational Health Research Initiatives Workshop Series

THRIVE is a partnership between Northern Arizona University & Northern Arizona Healthcare to facilitate collaborative research that builds on strong biomedical, behavioral, and cultural health research for the diverse populations of Northern Arizona.

Grant Funding Workshop

Presenters will explore critical elements of developing a successful grant application including: matching a research project's goals and objectives to a potential granting agency's mission; developing a budget that fully supports project and collaborator needs; and, evaluating potential research personnel to strategically develop effective project teams that convince funders that the right people are involved.

▶ October 21, 2016 - 10:30am - 2:30pm
▶ Light lunch included

Research Involving Vulnerable Populations Workshop

Presenters will address the unique concerns that arise when conducting research with vulnerable populations, such as children, Native Americans, and participants with sensitive past histories, such as drug abuse and incarceration. Of particular concern are the precautionary steps that must be taken when sharing data across agencies for collaborative population health and public health research.
